

Ten things ACSA Has Done for You Lately...

'A most trusted voice concerning educational matters...'

- 1 Nineteen stellar ACSA members were recognized this year with Administrator of the Year Awards in their job-alikes, along with five other top education leaders in special awards categories. The award-recipients will be honored at the Leadership Summit, Nov. 5-7 in Sacramento.
- 2 The formation of ACSA's Assessment and Accountability Task Force by ACSA President Chuck Weis will help the association lead the way in reforming California's assessment and accountability system as the current Public Schools Accountability Act sunsets in 2011.
- 3 ACSA has endorsed former association president Larry Aceves for superintendent of public instruction in 2010 to ensure California's schools and students have an opportunity to be led by a lifelong educator and former superintendent.
- 4 ACSA has provided a strong voice of reason and concern over school intervention issues at the state and federal levels as a special session of the Legislature works to ensure eligibility for federal Race to the Top funding.
- 5 ACSA has worked to ensure Gov. Schwarzenegger signs Assembly Bill 429, Brownley, D-Santa Monica, which will ensure the development of a longitudinally valid assessment system for students in grades K-12.
- 6 A new mentoring program has been launched to move the ACSA Diversity Action Plan forward and provide a broad array of guidance, support, feedback, and shared operational/technical expertise to all ACSA members.
- 7 Alliances with key partners in management services continue to ensure additional professional development and district/individual member consultation services in the areas of school management, finance, collective bargaining, and program operations.
- 8 ACSA is actively opposing the confirmation of two State Board of Education seats on the grounds that an unfair majority of SBE members are associated with charter schools.
- 9 Professional Standards Advocates assisted more than 600 members with professional/legal concerns and made nearly 2,000 calls on their behalf in 2008-09. The top five issues were: reassignment/demotion/termination, contracts for superintendents and other administrators, staff friction, retirement/disability and evaluation.
