

Administrator's Digital Leadership Network

Being the leader of a school community has a unique set of challenges in the 21st century. Parents are concerned with student screen time. Students communicate through their phones instead of face to face. Teachers require different levels of support to make tech use meaningful in their classrooms. In some ways, being a site administrator has never been more complex.

The Administrator's Digital Citizenship network is a community of site principals and school leaders learning how to lead thoughtfully in the 21st century. It is co-facilitated by the Contra Costa County Office of Education and Common Sense Education.

Goals:

- Collectively explore latest student digital trends and their impact on school culture
- Explore topics and solutions for Diffusing Cyberbullying, implementing digital citizenship, and creating a whole community approach to addressing media balance
- Build a network of support so school leaders don't feel isolated in leading in a 21st century environment

Cost:

Free for Site Principals, Assistant Principals, and Teachers on Special Assignment working in Contra Costa County

A portion of the costs of this event is sponsored by ACSA Region 6 and Contra Costa County Office of Education
